LOSS OF TERTH.

MR. J. EMANUEL, Surgeon-Dentist, Member of the College of Surgeors of Leyden and Utrecht, continues te supply the Loss of terth, from one to a complete set, upon his beautiful system of selfaddressor, which has procured him such universal approbation in some hundreds of cases, and recommended by numerous physicians and surgeons of New South Wales, as being the most ingenious method of supplying artificial teeth hitherto invented. They are so contrived as to adapt themselves over the most tender gums or remaining stumps, without causing the least pain, rendering the operation of extraction quite unnecessary.
They are so fixed as to fasten any loose term, by forming a new gum where the gums have shrunk from the use of calomel or other causes, without the aid of any wires or straines; and above all, are firmer in the mouth, and fixed with that attention to nature as to astonish the most sceptical. Mr. E. also begs to invite those not liking to undergo any painful operation, as practised by most members of the profession, to inspect his painless but effective system. Specimens, from one to a complete set, may be seen at his residence daily. And in order that his system
MAY BE WITHIN THE REACH OF THE MOST ECOMOMICAL, the will continue the same moderate

It arrests all further decay, and renders them again useful in mastication. The tooth warranted never to change colour. Mr. E. can confidently assert that this is one of the most valuable inventions ever introduced, and he will rea-dily undertake any case wherein others have failed.

At twelve o'clock precisely, WITHOUT RESERVE, VII Allotments of Building Ground, in Underwood and Elizabeth streets, PADDINGTON.

PADDINGTON.

This is a bit of that right sort of Building Ground which every tradeaman or mechanic knows well enough is becoming scarcer and scarcer every day. For every house he builds in this improving neighbourhood (having no Building Act to bother him), he can bring back his outlay in about three years, knowing that for £30 he can run up a house that will always let, the like of which cost his neighbours £130 a while ago. And where can any poor man get a better bit of ground than one of these lots? That he can put two or three small cottages on, if he like—to let off reserving one for himself and family. Always plenty of work in this neighbourhood.

At eleven o'clock, LOT 1.

LOT 1.

An Allotment of Ground, with 59½ links froatage to Sussex-street, and a depth of 188 links, and being Lot No. 5 of Section No. 54.

The above is situated in the immediate vicinity of the Soldier's Point, Hunter's River, Kellick's, Thom's, and the Commercial Wharfs, with stone of a superior description, and in inexhaustible quantity, which of itself would be an independence to any person, as even the rubbish would be easily disposed of for ballast.

Lot 2. LOT 2.

An alluvial Farm of sixty acres, on the navigable portion of the Upper Colo Branch of the Hawkesbury River, adjoining the property of Mr. James Ridge; about 30 acres are cleared, and have been under cultivation.

The situation of this anug tittle property casures a constant and never-failing supply of water, as it is situated at the head of the navigation of the Branch. The soil is of a very superior description, and there have been some valuable trees planted and an Orchard formed.

QUARANTINE.

Much surprise has been expressed by people in Sydney, that no measures have been taken by the Government to prevent the introduction of that frightful disease, the small pox, which, according to advices received at the beginning of the week, is now raging in the Isle of France. It was fully expected that a Proclamation would be issued without the loss of a single day, yea of a single hour, declaring all vessels yea of a single hour, declaring all vessels arriving from that port to be subject to the most stringent of our quarantine laws. Why this simple yet indispensable precaution should have been omitted, the public are at a loss to comprehend. We can hardly suppose it to have been omitted purposely; and if accidentally, something should be done to prevent the recurrence of such dangerous accidents in future.

Whilst on this subject, we may as well request the favour of being informed by some of our medical friends, for the satisfaction of the public, whether the colony is just now adequately supplied with the whole of the drafts declared upon on a particular day.

Mr. Darvall appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Windeyer for the defendant.

In support of the declaration it was argued by Mr. Darvall, that there was no necessity whatever to allege a due presentment of each draft, when it was distinctly averred that the defendant had no effects to meet them, so that the latter could have sustained no damage, either for want of presentment or want of notice. On the other hand it was contended by Mr. Winderen that the drafts must be treated as bills of exchange, and ought to have been presented as they were given, instead of being kept back by the plaintiff, and presented altogether, which mode of proceeding could not be considered a due presentment. The allegation of there being no funds (he said) had not been traversed, or it could have been shown that if the drafts had been duly presented, they would have been said. being no funds (he said) had not been tra-versed, or it could have been shown that if the drafts had been duly presented, they would have been paid. In answer to this, it was urged by Mr. DaxALL, that it was not com-pulsory to present drafts as received, unless there was a presumption of funds to meet them, and that it was sufficient to prove the want of effects so as to show that the defend-ant could not have been injured by want of due presentment.

The Courr was of opinion that the declara-tion was bad, for an allegation having been

The Court was of opinion that the declaration was bad, for an allegation having been made of a presentment, such allegation must be regarded as one of "due" presentment. After making such an averment it was not competent to the plaintiff to allege a state of circumstances in excuse for non-presentation. Leave however was given to the plaintiff to amend upon payment of costs.

ILLAWARRA.

The first ploughing match of the Illawarra Horticultural and Agricultural Society, took place on Monday, the 27th January, in a paddock of Mr. G. Brown's, at Dapto, and notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, a great number of persons were present on the occasion. At an early hour in the morning people were seen coming from all parts to the seene of action,—equestrians, pedestrians, and from the humble equipage of the bullock dray to the four-wheel carriage,—but we are sorry to say there were two or three of the leading gentlemen of the district, as also members of the association, absent, and the number of teams entered for the different prizes was very few for so large an agricultural district as Illawarra. The following is a list of prizes:—

First match—first prize £2 10s., for six bullocks with driver and ploughman, to plough half acre in four hours, for which six teams entered, and the first prize was awarded to Dr. Menzie's team, of Jamberoo; the second best prize was £1 10s., which was awarded to Richard Dennis.

Second match—prize £2 10s, for two horses, with reins, only two teams entered, Mr. Gerrad's and Mr. Brown's, and the prize was taken by Mr. Brown's team—Mr. Bwan's ploughman, and this man performed his work in a very masterly style, and completed his half acre in the short space of an hour and forty-five minutes.

Third match—prize £1 10s., for four bullocks, driver and ploughman, which was awarded to Robert Hudson, having no person to compete with.

So.

Calves.—Fifteen head have been disposed of at the pound for slaughter, the prices given ranged from 7s. 6d. to 18s. per head; a fed calf is worth 15s.

Houses.—The mounted police are giving from £12 to £15 for cavalry horses. Ten stock horses were sold at the Cattle Market on Tues day last, and realized from £6 to £10 each, the medium is about £7 10s. Strong carriage horses are worth £10 each. Good mares for breeding fetch from £12 to £15.

Poblem.—There is a large supply of these at present in the market; the carcass butchers are buying them up at from ½d. to ½d. per 10 on the estimated weight of the quarters.

Fruit.—During the week one hundred and seventy-seven loads have paid dues, mostly peaches, nectarines, pears, and apples. The peaches have been sold at from 4d. to 1s. per basket; pears, at from 2d. to 8d. per dozen; and apples, from 6d. to 10d. per dozen. GOULBURN.

JANUARY 29.—It having been determined upon to commemorate the anniversary of the foundation of the colony by a Cricket Match on the Monday last, the belligerent parties met to decide the friendly contest, on the open space of ground intended for the Market, opposite the Salutation Inn. The weather during the previous day and night was very unpropritious if for cricket, and consequently four of the party were prevented from appearing on the ground; but clearing up towards noon, enabled the players to commence the game with only nine of a side. Their names, with the score attached, I herewith send you, remarking that the bowling on both sides was very good; and from the equality of byes scored, the fielding may be judged of. With a little more practice the players will become a formidable band, from which to select an eleven to compete with any of the surrounding clubs; but to the play—"the play, the play's the thing."

Gamey dost thou shiver and shake,
Gamey Gay?

"The exchanges it is true have risen, and the English Banks appear for the present not to have judged rightly—but let us hope the colony will, one day, be so prosperous as not to be much indebted to England, and not to require supplies from thence so out of proportion to its produce as heretofore.
Imagine that over and above all importations and debts there should be £100,000 due to the colony for which no returns could be obtained swithout probable loss, and that the Banks should find themselves saddled with this amount after drawing all for which they found any demand. and themselves saddled with this amount after drawing all for which they found any demand. Their resource would then be to obtain gold from London. What discount on the settlers' drafts must the Banks charge to leave them 5 per cent. per annum interest merely?

Settler's drafts, at 30 days sight 1 month. Returns in gold, received in 9 months.

Five per cent. Insurance Freight, # per cent... Policy and petty charges ...

"But if the settler should want no accommodation, and could wait for his money until the wool should have been sold,—but reckon that the use of it here would have been worth to him 5 per cent. per annum, he would be charged by his correspondent in London for commission on sending the gold after a reasonable delay, probably 1 per cent. which added to the calculation for the Banks. 7 per cent. the Banks..... 7 per cent.

would leave the settler a loss of .. 8 percent.

"It is a problem of supply and demand, when the predicament may happen which may justify the Banks in exacting 8 per cent, from the settlers to insure them 1 per cent, profit on commission beyond a rate of 5 per cent, per commission beyond a rate of 5 per cent. per annum for the advance of their capital.

"Let it remain a question whether Gaffer is supposed to shake at the momentary serong position in which events have placed him in his dispute, or at the extraordinary position of the icebergs, 35° in the Southern Hemisphere! when the highest recorded in the Northern was 42°, and even that made Mount Æins uncomfortable."

The writer has not subscribed it.

With respect to the meteorological fact, I have not obsurved the icebergs alluded to in any of my voyages, but probably the coolness and wetness of this year has been owing to something of the sort.

If the kind of transaction to which the writer of this letter alludes were carried on to any great extent—that is, if the settler takes his return in gold—it still leaves the same state of things for the future;—it leaves the same influences in operation,—it perpetuates, and perhaps will aggravate, the discount of exchange for next year.

As money is worth only 3 per cent in Engchange for next year.

As money is worth only 3 per cent in England, and the Anglo-Colonial Banks are only getting that rate for their unemployed capital in the funds, this gentleman's calculation might more properly, for the object he seems to have had in view of throwing all the advantage to the side of the wool-grower, be made at that rate. And it would thus appear that the banks have really made a mistake to the extent of about 2 per cent.

The interposition of the Commercial Bank bears out my former reasoning, that all such mistakes are self-corrective, and speedily restified. If that Bank adjust rightly its double attitude of drawer and drawee, it will turn the penny handsomely. But the rate of exchange generally is not dependent upon a particular speculation, or casual acts. That is regulated by the difference between moneys to pay and moneys to receive by the colony, additional relations, and therefore principally by the difference of imports and exports. If the colonists wish to avoid periodical taxation by falls in the exchanges, they must import—seen women, and children first, and then goods.

Thirty ships, each bringing 333; persons per annum, will oceasion an annual increase of consumption within the colony, additional to what now exists, of 5000 bullocks, 60,000 sheep, 1300 tons flour, value at present prices £235,000, to say nothing of butte

CHEAF RAILWAY TRIPS FROM SHEFFIRID TO YORK.—On Monday last the students of the People's College, Sheffield, with Mr. Bayley, the principal of the institution, and several friends, paid a visit to York per railway. The day was fine; and so satisfied were the parties with their visit that we understand a second visit to Old Ebor, is determined upon at the first opportunity. "On Wednesday morning," says the Sheffield Fris, "the streets of Sheffield were thronged in all directions, shortly after six o'clock, with neatly dressed children and smart Sunday-school teachers belonging to the Church of England schools, all wending their way towards the railway station, the directors of the Sheffield and Rotherham and North Midland lines having undertaken to convey the youngsters to York and back again for a shilling-a-head. Such a monster train never before left Sheffield. It consisted of 56 carriages, conveying altogether 2800 souls. The chief objects of attraction were the minster and the museum—having seen which, with the other lions of York, this mass of little 'olive branches' returned in high glee in the evening." HALF-ANN-HALF.—When Lord Morpeth was in this country a few years since, he chanced to be at a dinner table in company with Mr. Fr. to allow him the pleasure of taking wins with him, who paltely declined the honour, remarking that he had shandoned its use. "You are more than half right," replied Lord Mr. H. Is lordship afterwards commenced pouring water into his glass with wine, drinking it about half and half. "I see, my lord," said Mr. F., "that you are just half right."—New York Paper.

PERSONALITY. — Even ordinary life utters voices which add their witness to this truth, if we will listen for them. How do all deepthinking people in the immost currents of their spirits live spart from others; and, more or less even feel that they do so. Others are round them, nigh to them, they touch them at various points. It may be, God has given them His best earthly blessing, the true affection of Flowright's side thus winning the match in one innings, with twelve runs over. The players then adjourned to the Salutation Inn, where an excelent dinner awaited them, provided by the deservedly respected pruprietor of that establishment. The cloth being removed, the parties present formed themselves into a club, to be called the Goulburn Cricket Club, a list of twenty-six names being its nucleus; and afterwards apent the evening in conviviaity and good-fellowship. The healths of Her Majesty, Prince Albert, Royal Family, Sir George Gipps, Army and Navy, Mr. Brodie, and the Chairman, (Mr. C. Cook), having been drunk and responded to, songe—Bacchanalian, sentimental, and comic, went round in lively succession; till what with the merry chorus, the sound laugh, and the hearty hurrah, "the very stones prated of our whereabouts;" and Sol looked in upon the breaking up of the party, who retired to their various homes, well pleased with each other, and unanimous in expressions of satisfaction with the arrangements made for their comfort by the worthy host of the Salutation, singing with Moore—

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald, Generianns,—On my arrival from the M-Leay River, I found waiting me the following letter:—

Why dost thou shiver and shake,

Gaffer Gray?

"The exchanges it is true have risen, and the colony will, one day, be so prosperous as not to be much indebted to England, and not to require supplies from thence so out of proportion to its produce as benetofers.

Ericaltration and content in the many and women against them, night to them, night to them, night to them, they touch them, they touch them, at ten, hose enearest to them, they touch them, phose certained sympathy; yet still, in how many of his deepest thoughts, his most immost excitation sympathy; yet at the trusting into convision, the string least to him; struggles of soul, outer sounds and sights, to touch all around him at every turn, and yet forced still to be himself one and alone.—Wilberfore's Sermons.

ETIQUETTE OF THE COURTS BELOW.—In all large establishments of servants one rule invariably prevails: the men and women servants, during the intervals in their employments, are never allowed to sit together in the same room. Each, men and women, have their respective places of resort. At dinner and supper time only do they assemble together. This regulation it is the duty of both the steward and the housekeeper to see observed, as experience has proved it to be favourable both to the morals of the individuals of establishments and to the proper fulfilment of each branch of household work. To the housekeeper's room, lady's-maids repair for breakfast, tea, and supper, and at all other seasons of leisure. Here also butlers, and valets are admitted to tea and breakfast, but not at other seasons. The still-room maid waits upon the housekeeper, and those in her room. The steward's or butler's room is the place of resort for the upper men-servants; and in houses where a second table is still allowed, the dinners and suppers of the chief members of the establishment are served in the steward's room, the steward's by waiting at table. The still-room, formerly the place in which waters of various kinds were distilled for domestic use, and where the housekeeper still prepares confectionery, and all the sweetments requisite for desserts, is also the place appropriated to the use of the female servants who rank below lady's maids. In this room they breakfast and have tea; and to this room, after dining in the servants' hall, they withdraw; and under the superintendence of the housekeeper, the housemaids occupy themselves in repairing or making the household linen. The servants hall, is which both men and maid servants have dinner and supper, is also the place to which all the men below the butler repair when disengaged from their several occupations. In this place, the kitchen maid, and the Asserbore of Jemmy Boswell.—At an assizes at Lancaster, we found Dr. Johnson's field, Jemmy Boswell, lying upon the pavement—inebriated. We subscribed, at supper, a guines for him and half-a-crown for his digit, and sent him, when he waked next morning, a brief with instructions to move for what we denominated the writ of 'Quare adhesit pavimento,' with observations, duly calculated to induce him to think that it required great learning to explain the necessity of granting it to the Judge, before whom he was to move. Boswell sent all round the town to attorneys for books, that might enable him to distinguish himself,—but in vain. He moved, however, for the writ, making the best use he could of observations in the brief. The judge was perfectly astonished, and the audience amased. The judge said, 'I never heard of such a writ,—what can it be that adheres pavimento? Are any of you gentlemen at the bar able to explain this?' The bar laughed. At last one of them said, 'My lord, Mr. Boswell last night adhæsit pavimento. There was no moving for some time. At last he was carried to bed, and he has been dreaming about himself and the pavement.'—Life of Lord Eldon.

TO MAKE A FORTUNE,
A N excellent opportunity now offers to any steady respectable person possessing a small capital—say from £500 to £1000 —to join in a business well known to be one of the best at present in Sydney, and founded on a basis beyond all doubt. A first-rate connexion is formed and established, and the business daily increasing, and extending itacif beyond the means of the proprietor;
and as every satisfaction can be clearly given,
on one need apply but those who can give fearence to some person of respectability and standing in the colony. The person required will have to overlook the accounts and indoor business, into the routine of which he can be easily intiated in one week. For further particulars apply (by letter, or personally) to

The scarcity of vessels is said to be the cause of this disappointment, and we dare say that such is the case. We have no doub however, that if the mercantile affairs of the district were not so much mixed up with those of Van Diemen's Land, we should have had two vessels loading in the bay this season for London, instead of a vacant space. The stores in town are crowded with wool, bark in large quan-tities is prepared for shipment; and whatas lumber on hands, until the vessel trading between this and Van Diemen's Land can slowly take it away. Our trade is therefore made subordinate to that of the sister colony, and we appear in many respects more a dependency of Van Diemen's Land than a district of Port Phillip.—Portland Guardian,

THE ENDS OF JUSTICE FRUSTRATED. The course pursued by Messrs. Went-worth and Windeyer in driving the Governor to the necessity of discontinuing the allowance given to country witnesses to defray travelling expenses, is already beginning to operate most banefully in this district. On Friday last, two of the witnesses who had been subportated from a distance of nearly two hundred miles, to give evidence in a case of murder, after hanging about the court for three days were told they would not be required till next session, and that they might go home and then come down again; but for which they could not receive a farthing, the Crown having no money to pay them. On leaving the court, they very naturally stated they would not come down again unless they were dragged every inch of the way by main "force," and we believe they will keep their word. Leaving the gross hardship of this and other similar cases out of consideration, we know these men could no come down without their expenses paid hand to month; in fact, they have not the means. Thus, as matters now stand, it dye may be committed almost with imin the country, provided the long way from the court; for without evidence to convic there can be no o defray travelling expenses witnesse will not attend. Verily Messrs. Windeye and Wentworth we fear will have much to answer for yet .- Port Phillip Herald.

FRANCE.

(From the Morning Chronicle, October 2.) WE have received the Paris papers of Monday by our ordinary express.

They are filled with details of the re-view of the troops by His Majesty on the previous day. The following is the account of the proceedings, as they are pub-lished by the Ministerial papers:—

Paris, on the occasion of the presentation signed to them; the infantry in the Cour des Tuileries, and the cavalry and artillery in the Place du Carrousel. When they in the Place du Carrousel. assembled the coup d'œil was very bril-liant. The weather had been bad in the morning, but was comparatively fine during the review. The King arrived at id at noon with the Queen, his Royal Highness the Duke de Nemours who returned from Metz on Saturday his Royal Highness the Duke de Montpen sier, and her Royal Highness Madame Adelaide. The King's carriage was followed by five others, in which were the ladies of honour of the Queen, and the King's aides-de-camp. The King alighted at the gate of the Tuileries called the Point-Tournant, near the great basin, and was received by the Ministers. His Majesty immediately entered the tent of the son of the Emperor of Morocco, which has been put up over the great basin, and examined every part of it with much interest The tent itself is not more than about 40 feet in diameter, but it is surrounded with a circular enclosure, leaving a space between that and the tent. This enclosure reached nearly to the edge of the basin. At a little before one o'clock the King entered the Court of the Tuileries on horseback, accompanied by the Dukes de Nemours and de Montpensier, Duke Bar-

the order of the Legion of Honour. After the presentation of the trophies, his Maand was received with loud cries of 'Viv le Roi.' The colour-bearers and officers, and non-commissioned officers, who, according to previous arrangement, were to receive the decoration of th Honour, then entered the Tuileries; the superior officers, officers, non-commisioned officers, and soldiers of the cavalry were dismounted, as were also the colour were placed in a single line, in the order of the numbers of their respective regiments, with the colours and standards behind them, and the band and drums of the 2d light infantry and 23rd of the line behind the colour-bearer. When the decorations had been conferred, the standards and the muicians and drummers remained in front of his Majesty. The colours taken in Morocco, preceded by Marshal Soult and several general officers, were now carried between the ranks of the cavalry and infantry, the drums loudly beating, and the trumpets playing. The non-commissione placed themselves at the right of the King, and Marshal Soult, advancing, said, ' Sire, and Marshal South, advancing, and,
I present to your Majesty the colours taken at the battle of Isly by the French army, and at Mogador by the Prince de Joinville. I entreat your Majesty to receive them, and to permit them to be placed in the nave of the Chapel of the Invalides!' The King replied, 'I accept these colours in the name of France.' The defiling of the various corps then commenced. At this time the King was with his staff in front of the Pavillon de l'Horloge. After the defiling the procession was formed for the conveyance of the trophies to the Hôtel des Ínvalides. It marched in the following order: -A detachment of the municipal guards, and then the regiments of infantry. the centre of the column, between the 17th light infantry and the 23rd of the line, were fifteen companies of élite, taken from the grenadiers and voltigeurs of each regiment. In the middle of this column were placed the trophies. The artillery followed, and then the cavalry. A large crowd lined the road of the procession, and frequent cries were heard of 'Vive le Roi,' 'Vive le Prince de Joinville.' Only the companies of élite who formed the escort of honour entered the Tuileries with the Etat-Major-General. The commandant of the Hôtel des Invalides, and the whole of his staff, were in waiting at the gate on the side of the esplanade. They headed the procession to the Cour d'Honneur, where all the invalides were drawn up. The companies of élite were headed by Lieutenant-General Sebastiani, and amongst the officers were Colonel Eynard, the aide-de-camp of General Bugeaud, who brought the colours taken on the 14th ult. at Isly, and Captain Bouet, who brought those taken at Moga-dor. General Sebastiani, in accosting General Baron Petit, the commandant of the Invalides, said:-

Soldiers, these trophies which you bring me shall be placed by the side those of Austerlitz, of Jena, and of Friedland; in other words, by the side of the most glorious trophies of the empire Let the memory of these great events be always present to your minds, and let them remind you of what France expects from your onstancy and valour. Vive le Roi. "This cry was unanimously repeated "The King yesterday passed a grand several times. Then thirty-two invalides review of the troops of the garrison of advanced towards the detachment charged several times. Then thirty-two invalides with the colours, and received them from of the colours and other trophies taken in the hands of the holders. During this part of the ceremony, the band of the Cour des Tuileries. At twelve o'clock all 62nd played military flourishes, and the the troops had arrived on the ground as- drums beat the salute. Generals Petit and Sebastiani placed themselves at the head of the detachment of invalides, who were carrying the colours, and after having passed in front of the lines of troops assembled in the court of the building, proceeded to the chapel, at the entrance of which stood the curé and his clergy. The religious ceremony of bless-ing the colours then took place, and lasted half an hour. The general officers and their staffs were present the whole time."

A good deal of astonishment was created in Paris on Monday, by the announcement given in one of the Marseilles papers, that the line-of-battle ship the Suffren, which was the Prince de Joinville's flag ship at Tangier and Mogador, had arrived at Toulon without the Prince. The fact turned out to be true, and many conjectures were abroad as to the cause of this singular circumstance. The following i the account given by the Sentinelle, o

Toulon, on the 27th :-"At eleven this morning a ship of the line and a steamer came in sight, and as it was supposed that the Prince de Joinville was on board, all the authorities held themselves in readiness to receive him. The Prince. besides, is himself slightly indisposed, and osom of his family."

The above is a very lame account of the

The report on the Paris Bourse was that the Royal Admiral is in high dudgeon at the sudden ermination of the Morocco war, and that he has been known to express himself in terms of the strongest disapprobation of the terms granted to the Emperor by the French Ministry. What truth may be in this report we will not venture to say, but bability than the story given by the Tou-lon paper. For several days previously it had been given out by some of the Paris papers that the Prince had obtained nore favourable terms from the Pacha of Larache, than those ultimately accepted by the Duke of Glucksberg and M. de Nion; but that he was obliged to relinquish them in consequence of orders from the Foreign-office in Paris. shall, however, hear more of the affair in a few days, should it turn out, as reported that he was gone off in a huff. last account the Prince was still at Cadiz. The best pepper comes from Sumatra, where the bunches, as soon as any of the berries ripen, are spread on dry mats or upon the ground, being ther red, but becoming black and more or less shrivelled in drying, according to their maturity. From this statement, corroborated to the writer by a physician from the preferred, and by the writer's testing their relative flavour and qualities himself, it appears clear that those who use white pepper at the higher price pay unwittingly for an inferior article; further, purchasers should buy whole pepper, for such sold by disreputable dealers ready ground is sophisticated with burnt crust of bread &c., and the white with beaten rice .-

Low RAILWAY FARES .- It appears from Mr. Laing's paper, appended to the Select Committee's Report, that at present the London and Birmingham Company carry 780,000 passengers per annum an average distance of 66 miles each. Of this number, 37 per cent. pay 3d. per mile, 54 per cent. 2d., and 9 per cent 11d. Supposing the company to run third-class carriage at 1d. per mile with all their trains, and allowing that 15 per cent. paid 3d. per mile, 30 per cent. paid 2d., and 55 per cent. Id., they would require to carry 2,979,670 persons (or nearly four times he present number) an average distance of 30 miles each, to secure the same gros returns; or, as the expenditure would b increased, the number must be raised to 3.500,000, to retain the existing amount of nett profit!—Railway Record.
